BE IN THE KNOW

Medical cannabis is available in Texas under the Compassionate Use Act

Passed into law in June 2015, the Texas Compassionate Use Act allowed for the use of low-THC medical cannabis to be used as a practical treatment for intractable epilepsy.

In June 2019, based on the success of the intractable epilepsy program, the Texas Compassionate Use Program (CUP) was expanded, allowing medical cannabis as a possible treatment for a much broader set of qualifying conditions.

For qualifying patients, the passage and expansion of the CUP means that, under the guidance and care of their physician, they now have access to a new treatment option to potentially improve symptoms such as seizures, pain, spasms, anxiety, depression, insomnia, restlessness and others.

For physicians, the Texas Compassionate Use Act equips them with a powerful medicine to help their patients living with severe conditions.

SYMPTOMS & FORMULATIONS

Medical cannabis products are produced in a wide range of formulations with varying ratios of CBD and THC. The two formulation classifications most appropriate for treating the symptoms of qualifying medical conditions are High-CBD and Balanced.

High-CBD formulations have much higher CBD content by weight.

Balanced formulations have relatively similar levels of CBD and THC by weight.
